

A COORDINATED EFFORT BY BREEDERS AND PROCESSORS TO IMPROVE WHEAT QUALITY

The Wheat Quality Council will sponsor a Hard Winter Wheat Tour again this May.

We will follow our traditional routes and make field stops every 10-15 miles along the way. We will provide expertise in each car to train with throughout the day. These tours are a great way to both see this year's crop firsthand and get training in the fields to learn about yield, insects and disease problems that may affect the crop.

We will have dinner together each night and hear reports from each car. We will also get reports from Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma from crop scouts traveling there on the same days. We shuffle car assignments each day. It's a great way to meet others in the industry.

The map on the web site shows the routes we will follow. The registration/agenda is also on the website.

Hope you can join us this year and please forward to those you think might benefit. We do have an unusual issue this year as the Manhattan Kansas Airport will be closed for runway repair during the time of our tour. For those of you flying, you will need to make arrangements through Kansas City or Wichita. Our plan is to try to shuttle as many people as we can that will be driving out from KC or Wichita. Keep me informed of your travel plans.

As usual, I am available for any questions.
